Travelling towards Uluru at early dawn, watch the sun appear from behind the sand dunes, where dark blues softly blend into pastel pinks and the warm light bounces off Uluru's ochre face. A sight enjoyed in solitude, due to SEIT's special secluded spot where you'll also enjoy a picnic breakfast in the surrounding bushland.

Your SEIT guide will walk with you to Mutitjulu Waterhole, home to rock art and the Anangu Aboriginal creation stories, where two ancestral beings leave traces of their battle.

The perfect tour for those who are short on time, with a modest amount of walking and drive around the base of Uluru.

Your SEIT guide will share the unique geology of this rock formation, which dates back 550 million years, Uluru as we know it being only the tip of a rock slab which dives underground.

Along the trail witness sunrise, warming your heart as you walk. Visit waterholes, rock art sites and learn of Uluru's cultural significance to the Anangu people.
